The Santa Barbara Public Health Department (PHD) is reporting a record high of 82 new cases within the county today. This brings the total number of cases to 2,253.

According to the numbers, 55 of the new cases are located in Santa Maria. 11 are in Santa Barbara, and the rest are scattered in lower numbers throughout the county.

Of the total 2,253, there are 989 cases belonging to the Federal Prison in Lompoc and 702 cases belonging to the City of Santa Maria alone. The north county of Santa Barbara makes up 969 cases, approximately 77% of the total community cases.

Currently, there are 211 active cases within the community. Of those, 61 are in the hospital with 17 in the intensive care unit (ICU), and 115 are pending information. There have been 22 deaths overall.

Yesterday PHD announced expanded personal care services would not reopen this Friday as the increase in hospitalization rates rendered the county disqualified from doing so. It's unclear when these services will reopen.

We'll see how fatalities trend in the next few weeks. This particular dashboard is free and it reports all the counties in a standardized format. I've viewed the LA times version, but you eventually need a subscription. Same with SF Chronicle. Relative to other counties, Santa Barbara is faring quite well. That may change of course.

Followed by a surge of people in the ICU and then like clockwork more deaths.

LA Times also has a great breakdown by county.
<https://www.latimes.com/projects/california-coronavirus-cases-tracking-outbreak/> This is the biggest day every for SB County... Lots in Santa Maria, as usual, but 11 in the city of SB. Saw a lot of maskless people on Coast Village Road today.

This is a great website because it gives statistics and graphs for every county in the state. Many counties are seeing an uptick in cases, but it hasn't translated to a corresponding uptick in fatalities. ***

Look at the number of patients in the ICUs. Not good.

No uptick in fatalities - yet. You do realize that most people with severe COVID-19 infections don't drop dead immediately, don't you? An uptick in hospitalization will almost inevitably lead to an uptick in deaths, since we have few effective therapies as yet.
